Dear Friends of IDS,

Keeping the economy in mind IDS made a "silent" year end appeal to raise funds for the commitment it made to the various activists it supports in India. We, the Board, would like to thank each and every one of you for your generous donations in response to our year end appeal.

IDS in collaboration with Loyola University had a successful and educational seminar in 2009 on Rural Innovations, including speakers Prof. Anil Gupta, recipient of the 2004 Padma Shri National Award for his achievements in the field of management and education, and Dr. Sailesh Rao, founder of Climate Healers. The seminar was moderated by Mr. Jerome McDonnell, host of Worldview-NPR.

The IDS Board has also been working on putting the rich history of the organization's past 35 years on its website www.idsusa.org. We believe that our members will find it useful and will be able to access annual reports and the projects we support.

Save-A-Mother, a project that IDS started supporting two years ago by giving it initial seed money, has expanded to over 169 villages in India with over 1000 women being trained in health care. Save-A-Mother has chapters across five US cities and has further expansion plans in 2010.

IDS is gratefully thankful to our supporters for believing in our mission of enabling the disenfranchised become self-reliant.

We, the Board members, wish you all a peaceful and progressive 2010.

India Development Service supported activities during 2009

Name: Save-A-Mother

Location: Sultanpur District, Uttar Pradesh

Category: Health care

The Save-A-Mother project minimizes suffering and deaths associated with pregnancy and child birth by educating women about pregnancy, nutrition, immunization, delivery and child care. In addition to benefiting pregnant women, the project has the complementary benefit in saving the child. We have been working in partnership with local NGOs in the state of Uttar Pradesh, India, which has one of the highest maternal mortality rates (MMR) in the world. Many other regions in India and the rest of the world are in similar situations where this program can be replicated.

Our Objectives

- Decrease maternal mortality by 50% in 5 years.
- Replicate this model and institutionalize and replicate the program to vulnerable districts where mortality exceeds the national average.
- Partner with NGOs in other high MMR communities and countries.
- Evolve into a health-literacy and activist organization extending beyond maternal and infant mortality.
- Gradually demand health as a human right.

Achievements during 2009

- In 2009 We conducted 3 to 4 induction training sessions per month and 6 to 8 refresher training courses.
- In 2009, we trained over 1000 women in health care out of which about 450 were designated as Health Activists (“Swasthya Sakhi”). That brings us to a total of over 620 Swasthya Sakhis in the field. We work in over 550 villages.
- We trained 35 master trainers in June 2009.
- We have expanded the program to Babina village of Jhansi district in Nov '09.
- On 26 Dec 09, ten trainers from Karnataka received training. Our team subsequently traveled to Chickbalapur in Karnataka and launched a health literacy program.

Our trained volunteer health activists track and follow each pregnant mother and help her with safe pregnancy and delivery. They also follow infants and children.

They educate the village population about sanitation, infectious diseases, AIDS, adolescent health and reproductive health. In addition, they work in tandem with the public health system workers, collect health data from the villages and create awareness that safe motherhood is a human right. Long-term data collection and comparisons are ongoing in 22 out of 50 blocks where Save-A-Mother volunteers are working.

We have launched five chapters in various cities in the USA and linked with various organizations in India and USA doing similar work.

Funds provided: $30,000 per year for 3 years. 2009 was the second year of support.

Name: Pardada Pardadi Education Society
Location: Anupshahar village, BullandShahar Distric, Uttar Pradesh
Category: Education

The Partnership between Pardada Pardadi Educational Society (PPES) & India Development Services (IDS) has created a great opportunity for PPES to flourish and expand its work and has opened a new world for the girls of PPES. The IDS grant has provided support towards setting up an English Lab and a teacher's computer training lab. This partnership will help PPES in enhancing the English speaking capacity for its students.

PPES purchased 80 computers at the cost of $100 each. These computers were used for basic computer skills and English proficiency. In addition, workshops were organized for 10 teachers in conjunction with Computer Sciences Corp. and Parot System grants. This project has directly supported 10 teachers and 35 girls in grade 7-10.

Achievements during 2009

- Trained and instilled confidence in girls who can face and resolve conflict situations.
- Improved skills with the Microsoft Office applications and internet usage.
- Improved spoken English.
- Girls are not married before the age of 18.
- Girls and their parents regularly interacted with the school.
- Girls attained better social/health status.
- Trained staff will be able to educate future students so that they become equal stake holders in the development of society.
- 100% success in classes 8 & 9.
- Decrease in drop out rate from 10% to 3% in classes 6 to 10.
- Decrease in absenteeism rate from 30% to 22%.

Name: Commutiny – The Youth Collective (CYC)

Location: Ashis Tiwari, Uttar Pradesh; Ankit Panchal, Gujarat; Sangeeta Mondloi - Madhya Pradesh

Category: Support young & upcoming activists

Commutiny – The Youth Collective’s Learning & Leadership Journey believes in the potential of youth to bring about social change. They are offering year-long support to selected youth at their critical phase of transition into youth activists. These youth activists then become change agents through implementing grassroots projects. The activists and their projects will identify and procure funds from other sources or develop and implement strategies to generate resources. Commutiny believes that the projects will take off in a full-fledged way in 3 year period, and thus be able to generate their own resources

Ankit Ambalal Panchal Hiralal is based in village of Ambaji in Hansa Block in Banaskantha District of Gujarat. Banaskantha is tribal dominated, and Ankit will be working with the Dungri Bhil community. This area has an agriculture based economy where locals are also heavily dependent on forest produce. While many of the local youth complete education up to Class 10, livelihood options are extremely limited. Ankit’s project will aim to generate livelihood options by linking Self Help Groups that he is creating to enterprise schemes of the government.

Sangeeta Mondloi Harangaon is a remote village situated 150 km away from district headquarters and 36 km away from the taluka in Madhya Pradesh. It is a hilly and forested area, with 40 small villages in the vicinity. These villages do not have provisions for education beyond the 8th standard, and are still not connected with roads. Girls have to leave school beyond Class 8. The social structure here is patriarchal and caste-based discrimination is strong.

Ashish Tiwari Tarapur in Amethi, Uttar Pradesh, is a village located in the plains. 50-100 families reside here. There are quite a few schools including private schools in the area and an inter-college school within a 3 km radius. Local issues are migration, poverty and issues of water. Ashish’s project will focus on migration and sustainable livelihoods. He will build awareness, skills on the viability of organic farming and offer it as a viable option for the growing generation to remain in the village.

Achievements during the Year:

Ankit Ambalal Panchal – Self help group (200 youth, women and children)

- Ankit’s main work has been the creation and running of SHG’s in 17 villages. He has constantly searched for ways to engage more people in critical thinking about local governance and social realities. The SHG’s have also emerged as a social space where people work together in harmony, reducing the number of social conflicts and arguments in other areas.
- Ankit and his group of youth inaugurated a Youth Development Center in Ankit’s village on 19th October 2009.
- Ankit facilitated training in making handicrafts using coconut and resin where the youth of the village acted as trainers. 3 trainees came to Dilli Haat, a traditional bazaar for tourists in Delhi to display their work.

- Ankit experimented with expanding the scope of his initiative to reach children and adolescents and organized a sports day.
- Ankit attended the Videocon India Youth Icon award 2009 on behalf of Community – The Youth Collective and received the award for “Outstanding Contribution - Community Service. Ankit’s work was identified for distinct and positive impact and hence he was nominated by CYC.

Sangeeta Mondloi (35-40 young girls and women)

- Sangeeta has been able to design and adapt a curriculum for informal education and activity based exploration of the self and society for use with adolescent girls.
- Sangeeta has been able to link with local schools and anganwadis for taking her workshops under existing infrastructures and institutions.
- A Library Center initiated by Sangeeta has emerged as a hub of trainings, workshops as well as cultural activities. Regular film screenings and discussions around books and news articles have taken place there
- Sangeeta has been able to groom a small group of girls who have had long term sustained engagement with her project into trainers who are now actively involved in the center’s work.
- Sangeeta has encouraged girls to venture out free of gendered and social restrictions. Activities like cricket, cycling and photography have helped to not only break socially constructed gender norms but also ensure a certain degree of mobility and independence for the girls.

Ashish Tiwari (50 children youth)

- Ashish has harvested Moong successfully, in a completely natural way.
- He conducted a grassroots comics workshop for 19 participants from a local government school.
- The main aim of Ashish’s work on organic farming is to get practical training and hands-on experience about different methods and techniques for organic farming.

IDS along with several other NGOs is providing rechargeable LED light lanterns that are charged using solar light panels and a lantern charging station. These LED light lanterns replace centuries old kerosene based lanterns. The charging station is managed by local women and becomes a source of earning for their families.

In many families, these lanterns will be the only source of light at night time. Many school students will be able to complete their homework in a smoke free environment in their huts.

Based on the request from the village population, IDS and Tata Energy Research Institute, New Delhi will jointly provide 100 lanterns. Each lantern has a 3w, 6Volt – 4.5 Ampere-hour LED / rechargeable battery. The lantern emits light in all direction to light up the entire hut.

Name: Adarsh Mahila Gram Udyog
Location: Lattur taluka and district, Maharashtra
Category: Women's Self Help Group / Micro Credit

The goal of the project is to empower women below the poverty line in every way (e.g. legally, socially, and financially) through self-help groups. It is to make them aware of their rights through legal awareness, foster gender-equality, and train them in different need-based vocations to make them economically self-reliant. We want them to achieve equal status in the family and society as human beings with human rights.

Adarsh Mahila Griha Udyog has formed 130 Self-Help Groups of women below the poverty line from the above areas. The age of the SHG groups is from one year to eight years. There are about 1560 women involved in these groups. Out of the 130 groups, 26 SHGs are linked with banks and they have received loans for Rs. 663,000.00 to be used for different vocations. They have started the following businesses—milk-dairy, provisional store (grocery store), goat-rearing, bangle shops etc. The repayment of the loan is 100%.

The remaining 104 SHGs need training and financial support for different business plans. As part of the business plan, we intend to give all SHGs training in sewing (tailoring). There is a high demand for this training by the groups themselves as there is no such training centre in these villages. The women are interested in getting the training and earning money through the sewing business.

Accomplishments in 2009

Awareness-raising for vermi-compost, organic farming, kitchen garden, bio-waste management and Auyurvedic medicinal plantating is going on.

In September, we organized a program to demonstrate the planting of medicinal plants. Two hundred women from all SHGs from 25 villages attended the program. A marketing consultant demonstrated the marketing of Ayurvedic medicines. He had brought 50 different medicinal plants to show and speak about.. It was very successful.

On 2nd Oct 2009, we organized a legal awareness camp with the co-operation of free legal Aid, District Vidhi Seva Pradhikaran and Mahatma Gandhi Tanta Mukti at Bhatangali. The district Judge Yevatikar, District Judge Meshram, Adv.Ranudevi Rakate, Adv.Kulkarni, Adv.Chitade, Mrs.Chandrakala Bhargaw and the UNICEF consultant Dr.Prabhudas guided the SHG women and the villagers. 150 people were present. The response of the villagers was very good. All the members visited the tailoring training centre at Bhatangali. The women and girls are now slowly gaining expertise in stitching blouses and Salwar-Kurta. They are earning as well by stitching the dresses.

Ten more women are expected to do the vermi-composting. The vermi-compost prepared by Mrs.Pushpa Shivaji Bansode from Mhamdapur is ready for marketing. The vegetables from all villages are now in full growth and families are making use of them in their meals.

In India kinship within families serves as a social net. However, due to disease, debt, domestic violence, and alcoholism, many children become orphaned or homeless and need to fend for themselves. It is important to take care of these children. We will establish a hostel to serve as a safe house for orphans and homeless children. In these hostels we will provide a secure home along with lodging, food, medicines, books, toys, clothes, and even training for potential employment. We have found that even simple facilities can be effective in protecting and educating our children.

Our 2009-2010 academic year is progressing well. We have now increased our intake and have a total of 40 boys under our care. Over this last year we have seen a tremendous improvement in students' average grades.

Within this group we are seeing a number of "toppers" appearing. We are confident that these children will successfully complete their school and attend the best universities on a full scholarship. Their performance in English and Hind is somewhat lacking. To improve English, we are now providing a daily English newspaper for children to read and setting up a library in the new building.

In this academic year, we are in the process of moving to a new building where we can accommodate girls. With the help of IDS and Lions International we have been able to mobilize funds to update a large building that has been donated for use by the Lions Club of Gajapathinagaram. In this building we are initially planning to accommodate 20 girls and plan to systematically increase intake as we have a total capacity of 100 children.

We have been keeping our operations efficient and use the existing infrastructure to ensure that our cost per child does not exceed $ 200. We benchmarked our operations with other NGOs at the Global Expo 2009 and our cost per child is 50% relative to others. This success we have achieved so far has come from the hard work of the volunteers from Lions Family Welfare Planning Trust, Spread International and your generous support through IDS. Without your contribution, this project would never have taken off. IDS provided the seed funding to set-up the new facility and pays for some operational costs.

Name: Mahila Chetna Manch
Location: Shahgarh Block, Sagar District, Madhya Pradesh
Category: Microcredit

This microcredit project in the Shahgarh block of Sagar district in Madhya Pradesh has been supported by IDS for the creation of Self Help Groups (SHG) and to help poor and impoverished women get out of poverty. This area in Madhya Pradesh is drought prone and lags behind in terms of livelihood resources. Due to lack of opportunities, a lot of people migrate to urban areas. There are no other microfinance institutions in this area. With IDS funds, Mahila Chetna Manch has worked in 18 development blocks in 9 districts, and has reached out to over 1,430 members in 39 villages. The women carry out several different activities such as bidi making, dairy, kirana shop, agricultural activities etc. They also help some of the SHGs to link with commercial banks. The repayment is 100%. With other funds and support, the organization has reached out to over 7000 women.

From January 2009 to the start of 2010, MCM had disbursed Rs. 36,50,000 to 386 women members of 40 SHGs belonging to poor households. Apart from lending credit, SHG members received education about how to save money for meeting their consumption needs. These SHGs have mobilized savings in the amount of Rs. 4,95,000 so far.

With the successful implementation of the micro finance program in Shahgarh block, MCM started replicating the program in another adjacent underserved block of Sagar district, called Banda, in September 2009. MCM has disbursed Rs. 17,80,000 to 180 clients of 18 women SHGs in this area.

Poor members utilize these funds for setting up/enhancing small income generating activities like animal husbandry, petty business and grocery shops.

Activity wise portfolio Classification

1. Animal husbandry	32
2. Petty Business	57
3. Tendu Leave Weaving (Bidi Manufacturing)	11

Here is a case study of the effectiveness of SHG: Kasturi Bai Jain is a rural poor woman of Beela village, Shahgarh block district Sagar. She has two adult sons, an adolescent daughter, and a husband in the family. The family was totally dependent on rain-fed irrigation. Both the sons were occupied in agricultural businesses which in fact was disguised unemployment. With great difficulty the family was making ends meet.

Kasturi bai heard about MCM and its micro finance program through her neighbor friend and expressed her desire to become SHG member. She became a member of Neelkamal SHG in Sept 2008, accessed a loan of Rs. 15,000 from MCM, and started a grocery shop business. With MCM's financial support and her meticulous hard work she earned good profit.

She completed the loan and applied for second loan in May 2009. With this loan she expanded the business and was able to create a running venture for her elder son who now runs the business with zeal and hard work.

She was now concerned about settling her younger son. She again approached the MCM staff for extending financial help. Keeping in view her credit discipline and entrepreneurship skills MCM gave her a third loan of Rs. 25000 in March 2010. She utilized this loan in opening a flourmill for her younger son.

At present, family members, in addition to income they receive from agricultural work, are generating regular income from the two running businesses. Kasturi bai has not only helped her sons to settle their businesses, but as a responsible mother, has enabled her daughter to complete her graduation. She owes the credit to MCM's microfinance team for making her dreams come true.
